

CONTENTS.

PART FIRST.

CHAPTER I.

NATURAL FEATURES AND GENERAL VIEW OF THE STATE.—Area and boundaries—General surface of the country—Elevations above the sea, height of bluffs—Different varieties and analyses of soils—Timber and prairie divisions compared with Iowa—"Big Woods"—Water, Lakes and Rivers—Natural meadows and grass—Yield per acre and cost of saving—Summary of natural advantages. Pages 13 to 24.

CHAPTER II.

POPULATION AND NATIONALITY.—Growth in population compared with other States—Growth in wealth from 1849 to 1868—Increase of live stock. Pages 24 to 28.

CHAPTER III.

OFFICIAL DESCRIPTIONS OF EVERY PART OF THE STATE.—Eastern Minnesota, by Owen, Abert, Wheelock, and Clarke—Swamps of the north-east, and facilities for drainage—Pineries—Minnesota Valley and South-western Minnesota, by Nicollet, Carver, and Featherstonaugh—Western Minnesota, by Nicollet and Gen. Bishop—North-western Minnesota, by Pope, and "Carleton" of the Boston Journal—"Big Woods" described—Red River Country, by Owen, Pope, and Capt. Anderson—Southern Minnesota, by Abert, Nicollet, Owen, and Wheelock—Northern Minnesota, by Dr. Barnard, Rev. John Mattocks, Owen, Norwood, Wheelock, Nicollet, Hanchette, and Clarke—Its cascades, scenery, minerals, pineries, elevations—Sources of the Mississippi. Pages 28 to 52.

CHAPTER IV.

CLIMATE—GENERAL VIEW.—Official descriptions in brief by Col. Abert, Dr. Owen, and Col. Whittlesey—Army statistics—Letters from Bishop Grace, Rev. Drs. Bushnell, Brown, and Boardman. Pages 52 to 57.

CHAPTER V.

HEALTH—A CHAPTER FOR INVALIDS.—Official testimony of Pope, Abert, Owen, Dr. Leas, Consul at Madeira, and U. S. Surgeon Wood—Testimony of Disturnel's book on climates, Dr. R. T. Trall, and Horace Greeley—Letters from invalids cured: their experience of the climate, country, and people, fishing, hunting, &c.—Who should and who should not come—Mortality compared with other American and European States—Dr. Mattocks' report and letter—Should consumptives go North or South?—Mortality of American cities compared. Pages 57 to 72.

CHAPTER VI.

THEORY OF THE CLIMATE.—Its anomalies explained—Daily and mean temperature compared with that of other places—Spring, summer, autumn, and winter described—Daily record of two winters—How often it is below zero—When cold here, cold everywhere. Effect of Winds.—Dr. Kane's experience—Dr. Owen—Absence of wind during cold terms—Prevalence of southerly winds. Dryness of the Air—Statistics.—Cold not regulated by latitudes—Prof. Maury—Disturnel—Statistics—The Gulf Stream and warm air from the Pacific—Hind's report—Gov. Stevens, Capt. Mullan, Disturnel, Carleton—The Isothermal Line, or the line marking the same mean annual temperature through America and Europe, as applied to Minnesota—Minnesota further south than the most populous European States—Article from the London Financial Chronicle—Humboldt's theory—Statistics of snow, rain, and frost in the State. Pages 72 to 85.

CHAPTER VII.

SCENERY—A CHAPTER FOR TOURISTS.—Official descriptions, by Owen, Hanchette, Clarke, and Long—Letters from Dr.

Boardman and "Carleton"—Prof. Maury—Lakes, cascades, falls, landscapes, mountain scenery—The jewelry of the State. Pages 85 to 91.

CHAPTER VIII.

MINNESOTA AS A FARMING COUNTRY.—Dr. Cheadle, an English writer, compares it with Canada and other Western States—Horace Greeley writes a letter about it—Compared with Illinois, Iowa, and Wisconsin, by Geo. B. Wright, U. S. Surveyor—Compared with Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, and Illinois, by Carleton, of the Boston Journal—Also with the richest countries of the world—What the Cincinnati Times says—Crops raised, and the yield per acre—Statistics of all the States compared—Full evidence of our capacity to raise corn. Stock Growing.—Dairy business—Profitableness of farming—Testimony of Gen. Warren—Large farms: Paxton's, Dalrymple's, Davidson's, Marshall's, Thompson's—Profits of small farms, five or six examples—Cost and profit of raising wheat—Extra yields of wheat and other crops—Examples. Pages 91 to 114.

CHAPTER IX.

COMMERCIAL RESOURCES.—Railroads, Rivers, and Markets.—Pope's topographical report—Gen. Warren on the Fox and Wisconsin river improvement—Great saving in freight by this line and by the Lake Superior Railroad—Minnesota as near New York as Illinois—Wheelock's report—Anecdote of Professor Mitchell, showing the effect of railroads—Future commercial importance of Minnesota—Wm. H. Seward's prediction. Vast Fertile Areas north-west of Minnesota, to the Pacific.—Described by a committee of Congress, by Rawlings, Dr. Cheadle, and "Carleton"—The "Fertile Belt"—The track of a Pacific railway, described by English explorers—Glowing descriptions. The Red River (Winnepeg) Settlement, the seat of the rebellion—Its resources, people, and products—"Life at Winnepeg." North Pacific Railroad the shortest route—Its future business and effect on Minnesota—Thos. D'Arcy McGee, Rawlings, Chicago Tribune, and Philadelphia Press on the subject. Present Condition of Minnesota Railroads.—Projected roads and connections—Rivers and steamboat navigation—Growth of twenty-four years' business—Tonnage, business, and earnings of railroads—Trade and exports. Pages 114 to 137.

CHAPTER X.

MANUFACTURES AND WATER POWER.—Enumeration and description of water powers, and the raw materials—Geological authorities. Slate, iron, copper, lumber, glass sand, granite, brown stone, tripoli, &c.—Cost and profits of slate quarrying. The Pineries.—Their vast extent—Where located—“Will they fail”—“Life in the Pineries.” Pages 137 to 150.

CHAPTER XI.

MINNESOTA AS A FRUIT COUNTRY.—Wild rice and cranberries—Vast areas and profits of culture—Indian mode of gathering wild rice—Where located—Other wild fruits—Cultivated fruits—Progress and success of apple culture—Varieties—Who have succeeded. Pages 150 to 157.

CHAPTER XII.

EDUCATION AND RELIGION.—Amount of school land and the school fund—Statistics of schools and school houses—Colleges, universities, normal schools, &c. Churches.—Number of each denomination, value, and membership—Missionary operations and religion on the frontier—Missions among the Indians. Pages 157 to 162.

CHAPTER XIII.

INDIANS.—Agencies and trading posts—Institutions, social customs, and amusements—Religious notions. Pages 162 to 168.

CHAPTER XIV.

SCENES ON THE FRONTIER.—Forty miles north of Ottertail Lake—A pioneer—A settlement go forty-five miles to celebrate the 4th of July—Chippewa Indians—A band of music—Snug farm and rural refinement—Woman's rights on the frontier—Farm of the “Seven Sisters,” sixty miles west of St. Paul. Pages 168 to 173.

CHAPTER XV.

GOVERNMENT LAND.—How much still open to homestead entry, and the terms—Who can make a claim—The homestead law—The pre-emption law—Half-breed scrip—Where the Government lands are—Location of land offices, and address of the officers—Amount of government land in each county—Best way to secure good claims—How and when the land is plowed, and the cost—When and how planted—No fever and ague—Prices and terms of buying land from individuals, railroad, or school lands—Average assessed value of all the land. Pages 173 to 179.

CHAPTER XVI.

Fish and game—Natural history—Botany—Number of lakes in the State—Varieties of fish—Lake Superior fisheries—Game—Varieties of birds—Plants and flowers. Pages 179 to 183.

CHAPTER XVII.

Banks—Insurance companies—Telegraphs—Stages—Benevolent Associations—State laws—Taxes—Public libraries—Rights of married women—Legal interest. Pages 183 to 187.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Cost of living—Prices current—Wages—A talk with farmers, mechanics, invalids, tourists, and immigrants generally—Cost of building—Building associations—Freights and fares—Cost of opening farms—Teams, utensils, and stock—The farm house—"Bees"—Winter work. Pages 187 to 192.

(The following is added in the closing pages of the book.)

PROGRESS OF THE STATE DURING 1869, AND UP TO JANUARY 1st, 1870.—Miles of railroads built—Assessed property—Live stock—Correct area under cultivation of each crop—The gross yield, and the yield per acre in 1868 and 1869, in every county and in the State—Immigration of 1869—Concluding summary. Pages 275 to 289.

THE PRESS OF THE STATE.—Every paper, its politics or specialty, publishers, day of publication, and terms. Index to Advertisers.

PART SECOND.

THE COUNTIES.—Every County of the State in alphabetical order, and its towns, specially described as to population, nationality, soil, timber, prairie, meadow, lakes, streams, water power, area cultivated, products, prices of lands, fuel, lumber, numbers of live stock, increase of wealth and business, number of schools, school houses, and their value, children between five and twenty-one, churches, societies, number of stores, amount of business, number of lawyers, doctors and other professions and trades, amount of buildings and improvements, advantages and openings for business, number of mills, number and location of water powers, amount of school and railroad lands unsold, and the prices and terms, post offices, &c.

For fish, game, fruits, attractive scenery, government lands, &c., in each county, see the chapters in Part First on these topics.